Samuel Lepage is a partner in the firm's Litigation Group in Montréal. His practice includes complex commercial litigation, real estate litigation, cross-border matters and class actions.

He has an extensive experience in class actions in the area of product liability, environmental nuisance, antitrust and privacy. He often defends manufacturers' liability class actions related to pharmaceutical and consumer products. He regularly acts for significant clients in class actions involving Consumer Protection Act claims. Prior to joining McCarthy Tétrault, he practiced litigation at a boutique law firm specializing in class actions and acting primarily for plaintiffs.

Samuel has appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada, the Quebec Court of Appeal and all Quebec trial courts. He has experience serving as lead counsel at the trial level.

He is also a member of the firm's medical-defence group and acts for physicians in medical-negligence cases.

His experience includes:

- Acting for both defendants and plaintiffs in a large number of class action matters;
- Defending pharmaceutical and medical device companies in multi-jurisdictional product liability class actions;
- Defending major financial institutions in securities class actions;
- Defending a wind farm developer and operator in a class action involving purported neighborhood annoyances;
- Acting for property owners in latent defect litigations;
- Acting for landlords and lessees in commercial leasing litigations;
- Acting for property owners in construction defect and defective work litigations involving construction contractors and professionals;
