With unmatched regulatory and environmental experience, Paul provides strategic and value-added advice for clients' projects, transactions and litigation matters

Paul is a partner in our Business Law Group in Vancouver and co-head of our National Environmental, Regulatory & Aboriginal Group. One of the most respected practitioners in the space, his deep industry business knowledge is without comparison. International investors routinely seek his advice on the regulatory environment for doing business in Canada.

Recognized as one of Canada's leading environmental and energy lawyers

Paul is entrenched in corporate and commercial regulatory, litigation, policy and project development across North America. Serving as a senior policy and strategy advisor to high-profile companies nationwide, he is highly sought after for not only his legal but also business counsel in:

- natural resources extraction (mining/forest products/fisheries);
- manufacturing and transportation;
- energy (conventional, upstream, pipelines, LNG and renewable);
- power (generation/transmission); and
- marine and terminal shipping.

A dominant character who has lots of energy and is a force of nature

— MARKET COMMENTATOR (CHAMBERS CANADA)

Paul proactively advises on environmental due diligence strategies as well as responses to environmental enforcement actions. Bolstering energy and mining projects through each stage of development, he is seasoned in securing operational permitting, structuring transmission/supply agreements, and preparing for environmental assessments. International LNG project proponents and investors rely on Paul's knowledge of greenhouse gas rules, emissions standards and carbon taxes in regulation/electricity generation, contaminated site, property acquisition and brownfield development matters. A selection of his experience includes:

- Represented and led several major energy (conventional and renewable) and mining projects in development stage environmental assessments and operational permitting

- Advised major energy companies on environmental due diligence strategies
- Advised major mining, manufacturing, transportation and other companies on responses to environmental enforcement actions
- Provided environmental crisis management advice
- Advised on utility regulation matters/electricity generation, transmission and LNG electricity supply agreements
- Advised on contaminated sites and brownfield development
- Advised on property acquisitions related to LNG siting, including in depth due diligence on potential sites in British Columbia
- Advised project proponents and investors on potential LNG greenhouse gas rules, emissions standards and carbon taxes

Paul has provided evidence on Canadian environmental law in U.S. legal proceedings and served as an independent witness to the Canadian Parliament's Standing Committee of the House of Commons on the Environment. When environmental disasters strike, he is among the first called by the media, frequently publishing his insights in national newspapers.
