With unparalleled project finance experience, Stephen provides clients with strategic solutions to sophisticated lending and financing matters.

Stephen is a partner in the Toronto office. Recognized as one of Canada's leading project financing lawyers, Stephen's practice is focused on helping clients with high profile, complex national and international lending and project financings.

Stephen leverages over 25 years of experience to provide clients with practical guidance and solutions. Clients appreciate his commitment to understanding the drivers and risks behind every transaction. As the leader of the firm's Business Law Group, Stephen is responsible for managing over 200 legal professionals across seven cities, giving him unique insights into the nature of successfully running a complex business that in turn, helps him to better serve clients in running their own businesses.

As a pioneer in Canadian project finance, Stephen has acted as lead counsel for lenders, borrowers and governments on the project financing of power and infrastructure projects at the intersection of Government policy and private capital, which also frequently involves Aboriginal communities. Some of his representative transactions include:

- lead counsel for the lenders in a C$102.7 million financing for the construction and operation of a 36 megawatt bioenergy generation facility for Conifex Timber in Mackenzie, British Columbia;
- lead counsel for a syndicate of lenders on a $300 million credit facility to Canada's largest public construction and infrastructure development company;
- lead counsel to the syndicate of lenders on a $540 million project financing of a 260 megawatt gas fired power generating station in Western Canada;
- lead counsel for the developer on a $170 million public private project financing and development of a bridge over the McKenzie River in the Northwest Territories;
