ESG and Sustainability

Kimberly's experience in a multitude of regulatory frameworks brings added value to commercial clients.

Kimberly is a partner in the firm's Energy & Infrastructure Groups in Calgary and the National Environmental, Regulatory and Aboriginal Group. Her practice focuses on environmental, energy (including electricity and oil and gas) and regulatory, law. Kimberly's versatility enables her to anticipate issues that may arise for the clients she works with and provide proactive strategic advice, whether it is advising on the environmental risk of a transaction or procuring key regulatory approvals for a new project.

Kimberly's practice involves a broad range of regulatory and commercial work involving pipelines, natural gas and electric utilities and energy projects, including renewables and carbon capture, utilisation and storage. She has experience in all aspects of energy project development and has appeared before several regulatory tribunals, including the Canada Energy Regulator (formerly the National Energy Board), the Alberta Energy Regulator, the Alberta Utilities Commission, the Alberta Environmental Appeals Board and the British Columbia Oil and Gas Tribunal.

With her experience in commercial transactions, project development and financing, Kimberly provides practical advice to clients in real time. When clients approach Kimberly, she already knows their industry and understands how they are regulated, allowing her to get straight to the issue at hand.

We originally retained Kim as counsel on an environmental investigation and potential prosecution and have found her representation to be exceptional. She is well versed in environmental law and has an additional technical side that has been beneficial to our corporation. She is intelligent, competent and personable, able to effectively communicate with internal counsel, business representatives and external experts. Since our original retainment we now utilize Kim on all environmental matters and feel comfort in her guidance and expertise.

— GC OF A CANADIAN ELECTRIC UTILITY COMPANY

The environmental component of Kimberly's practice concentrates on environmental counselling, analysis of new regulations, environmental issues raised in commercial transactions and environmental assessment and permitting. She also has extensive experience in the carbon market, providing strategic advice on matters relating to offset systems, offset protocols, verification procedures and emissions trading.

Prior to specializing in energy and environmental law, Kimberly practised in our Real Property and Planning Group in Calgary. Her practice included acting for companies in the purchase, sale and leasing of commercial properties and acting for financial institutions with respect to lending transactions secured by real property interests.

Some of Kimberly's recent notable work includes:

- acting on behalf of Suncor Energy Inc. in connection with an environmental protection order including with respect to an appeal before the Alberta Environmental Appeals Board (EAB), related to a historical contamination at a former gas station;
- advising International Paper Co. on all regulatory aspects of its acquisition of a pulp mill business from Weyerhaeuser Co. for US$2.2 billion;
- advising TD Greystone Asset Management and IST3 Investment Foundation, a Swiss investment foundation, in connection with definitive agreements to the purchase of up to 100% interest in Alberta PowerLine
