Raynell Hodge is an associate in our Litigation Group in Calgary. She maintains a general corporate commercial litigation practice and acts for clients on a broad range of matters including in the areas of contract disputes, oil and gas, administrative law, and securities litigation.

Prior to joining McCarthy Tétrault, Raynell articulated and practiced at another major national law firm in Calgary, where she gained experience in dispute resolution, litigation and international arbitration.

Raynell regularly volunteers for the Civil Claims Duty Counsel Project and Queen's Bench Amicus Project, where she helps unrepresented and disadvantaged litigants with their civil claims in court.

Raynell received her JD from Queen's University and is a member of the Law Society of Alberta, the Canadian Bar Association and the Calgary Bar Association.
