Cristina Rogov is a member of the Law Society of Ontario and holder of a Temporary Restrictive Permit issued by the Barreau du Québec. Following a Civil Law degree, a Juris Doctor degree and a Master of Laws degree, she developed a practice focused on global mobility of workers and corporate immigration.

Being fluent in five languages, she advises on matters relating to corporate labor shortages, workers inadmissibility and general issues of international mobility. She also counsels individuals on permanent residence and citizenship issues.

An avid traveler and involved community member, her expertise is often sought in providing training to fellow immigration lawyers as well as insight on current legislative amendments in Canadian immigration law.
