

Abigael Singer

Summer Student

Montréal

asinger@mccarthy.ca

Law School

Université de Montréal

Abigaël Singer is currently a law student at Université de Montréal. Prior to pursuing her studies in law, she worked as a paralegal at another national law firm and in the legal department of an international company in the aerospace industry. Abigaël is currently Co-President of the AEJD (Jewish Law Students' Association) of University of Montreal. During her mandate, she has interviewed legal professionals from various fields of law. She has also helped organize workshops for the professional development of students. Abigaël is also actively involved in University of Montreal's Racism and Discrimination Working Group in order to find ways to fight discrimination on campus and propose solutions. Abigaël is also a member of the Weizmann League, a group invested in promoting scientific innovations from the Weizmann institute. In her free time, Abigaël loves to read, spend time with friends and family. She is also passionate about science and technology.

Recent Insights

- Bill 95: Quebec's Digitization Law Unpacked
July 16, 2021