John P. Brown is Legal and Strategic Advisor, Indigenous Initiatives.

- John is a senior member of the legal team at McCarthy Tétrault representing First Nations people across the country in two class action lawsuits against Canada that were brought to compel Canada to provide safe, clean drinking water to all First Nations. In December 2021 the courts approved one of the largest settlements in Canadian history in these class actions in which Canada has agreed to spend $8 billion to address these water issues. This monumental agreement includes commitments to hundreds of First Nations to construct the critical water infrastructure they need and provides compensation and other benefits to these First Nations and their members.
- John is the chair of the McCarthy Tétrault Reconciliation Committee.
- John is a mentor in the McCarthy Tétrault & Martin Family Initiative Mentorship Program for Indigenous Students which is committed to improving education and outcomes for Indigenous youth by linking the firm's lawyers as mentors with Indigenous students in Grades 8 through 12.
- In partnership with Pro Bono Students Canada, the Ontario Federation of Indigenous Friendship Centres, and the Ontario and Canadian Human Rights Commissions, McCarthy Tétrault contributed to the development of a new Indigenous Human Rights Clinic. John is a member of the Advisory Council for the Clinic and in addition will be assisting and mentoring the firm's lawyers who will be providing culturally sensitive legal services to Indigenous clients, and representing them at mediations and before tribunals.
- John is a member of the Giiwedini Anang Council of Aboriginal Legal Services. The Council is comprised of Indigenous community members and provides an Alternative Dispute Resolution program for mediating child welfare, custody and access disputes involving Indigenous families using traditional methods. A key objective of the Council is to ensure that the children's relationships with their Indigenous culture, traditions and history is respected, protected and maintained.
