Jill brings a blend of strategic thinking, practical problem-solving and procedural experience to resolve complex class action, product liability, financial services and general commercial litigation files for clients.

An experienced commercial litigator, Jill is the Chair of our National Class Actions Group and Practice Lead of our Vancouver Litigation group. She is also a member of our firm's Financial Services Litigation group and Consumer and Retail group.

Clients appreciate Jill's ability to simplify complicated legal problems, identify priorities, develop a strategy to navigate through the labyrinth of complexities, and arrive at a winning resolution. During her career, Jill has defended clients in industries such as financial services, retail and consumer markets, technology, and manufacturing, against class actions lawsuits. These class actions have included wide-ranging allegations such as breach of contract, economic torts and restitution, price-fixing, product liability, and breach of privacy. She has also represented financial institution clients in an assortment of matters such as mortgage terms, de-marketing and fraud, and has defended clients in consumer litigation matters, including in relation to the Business Practices and Consumer Protection Act.

Jill's representative experience includes:

CLASS ACTIONS

- defending the asset management arm of a financial institution through a nine-week common issues trial in response to allegations of closet indexing. Jill's client was successful on all issues.
- defending various large financial institutions in class actions regarding various different fees and fee structures, including credit card fees paid by merchants, balance protection insurance, mortgage pre-payment fees, and others.

Jill is the editor of the fifth edition of Defending Class Actions in Canada, published by LexisNexis, and was an editor and contributing author to the previous editions. She is also a frequent presenter on class actions and other litigation topics at Canadian Bar Association events and other conferences. These are important commitments to Jill as they represent opportunities to provide the marketplace with a broader context of the class action and litigation landscape. By being made aware of the latest trends, how the law is evolving and how cases are being resolved in different industries, Jill believes the marketplace will be better informed and have a richer perspective which to view their own legal challenges.

Jill received her BSc (Biological Sciences) from the University of Lethbridge in 1998, where she received the Gold Medal and the Governor General's medal. Jill received her LLB from the University of British Columbia in 2001. After graduating from law school, Jill clerked for the Chief Justice of the British Columbia Court of Appeal. She was called to the bar of British Columbia in 2002 and is a member of the Canadian Bar Association and the Vancouver Bar Association. She is the past chair of the Consumer Litigation Committee of the International Bar Association and of the Class Actions Section of the Canadian Bar Association, British Columbia.

Jill strongly believes in the importance of contributing to the larger community. She is the current Chair of the Boys and Girls Club of South Coast B.C. and the co-chair of McCarthy Tétrault's Vancouver United Way Committee.
