

Speaker 1: The feeling, at least the feeling that I've heard from sort of folks on the ground is that Trump will. So so Harris is expected to continue the Biden platform so expansive get comfortable with being uncomfortable because there's a very wide scope of conduct that is potentially going to be within their purview and enforced. Trump is expected to sort of settle down into a more traditional antitrust enforcement perspective, but still quite vigilant, at least in the sectors that he and his administration care about.